

Dr. Jonas Viškelis - chief researcher and head of the Laboratory of Biochemistry and Technology, Institute of Horticulture, Lithuanian Research Centre for Agriculture and Forestry. In 2018 defended the thesis "The impact of apple-tree (Malus × domestica Borkh.) management technologies and biological factors on fruit quality in intensive orchards". The main direction of scientific research is complex research on the quality of plant materials, focusing on their applicability in experimental development activities in the creation of innovative products in the fields of food, pharmaceuticals, and sports. Together with the co-authors, he published 2 book chapters, published 68 articles (51 of which are indexed in the Clarivate Analytics Web of Science database) h-index is 10, has given more than 100 scientific presentations at national and international conferences, published 8 recommendations, 3 popular publications in the press, participated in 2 scientific internships, carried out more than 30 R&D works and scientific projects of state institutions and domestic and foreign business entities. Currently, he supervises two doctoral students, one defended. In 2018, he won the award of the Lithuanian Academy of Sciences prize of the competition of young scientists and doctoral students.